Mr. Sume a offered a resolution directing the Committee on Judiciary to Inquire into the expediency of reporting a bill to repeal the act of September, 1859, commonly known as "The Fuglitue Slave Law." He said he now gave notice that on te-morrow he would more to take up the resolution, and would throw himself on the subject.

Mr. Masox said there were but few acts which he would perform before extending any courtesy to a Senator, but if the Senator desires to morrow to call up this resolution and to speak on it, he would, for one, refuse to allow him to do so. The Senate had fixed a day for adjournment, and it now lacked but thirty days of the time fixed, with all the public business yet to be disposed of, and now, at this late hour of the session, the Senator from Massachusetts claims the indulgence of addressing the Senator on a subject in which is involved the existence of the Union. He for one, would refuse any such courtesy.

The Charmana said no remarks were in order, as the resolution was not under consideration.

The bill making altion III a port of entry, was taken up and ordered to be engre sed.

Mr. Bronia, (dem) of Delaware, opposed the amendment, when it was rejected.

Such the News believes is not the case. For some years past thete has been a tacit understanding that American fishing vessule should only be excluded from those bays and inlets of the const which are toos than six miles wide, and within which American vessels could not of course fish unless within three miles of the tank on either side, To do this, the News thinks will be sufficient as nearly all the American versels are in the nabit of fishing near the shore during the best of the fishing reason.

All the St. John papers coincide in the opinion that itself from than, with an eye to the nain chance, and to save the fishing interest from rain, will give the provinces reciprocal free trade as a settlement of the question.

The Lundy's Lane Celebration.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE NEW YORK HERALD.

NIAGARA FALLS. July 27, 1852. poor display. The military ooked well, but their numbors were small-probably not exceeding two hundred. Civilians did not join in the procession, but a crowd ac companied it to the place of meeting. Around the principal stands a gathering of some three thousand people was soon collected. A considerable number of ladies was present, and very many Indian ghts, very tas ofully

The Buffalo Glee Club chaunted a political song, which drew forth loud applause

The meeting was organized by the appointment of the Mon. Thomas Ewing, of Ohio, as President, and Vice Presidents from each of the States represented.

A New Jersey delegate, from among the crowd. compisined that his State was not honored by the nomination of a Vice President, and proposed as such W. A.

The platform was situated in a small hollow, over shadowed by trees, under which most of the audience had seated themselves around the Hon. Thomas Ewing.

The Chairman was introduced to the meeting, and prayer was offered by the Rev. Thomas Wissen. He dwelf at length on the blessings of liberty and republicanism, and asked grace and wisdom to be given to the candidates for the high office of the State.

The CHAIRMA then returned thanks for the honor conferred upon him. Before taking the chair, he said he thought it right to say something of the spir which actuated them to-day. They met on the anniversary o an early and glerious victory—the victory of Lundy's Lane-and of many battles was their candidate for the Presidency the hero. His military achievements, however, he would leave to be spoken of by others, white h would dwell on the civil view of the case, of which he felt better qualified to speak. General Scott was new their candidate for the Presidency. He is objected to because he is a military man; and this objection are se from the party which when they had a military candidate, based their strongest claims for his election on his military achievements. But General Scott is not a more military man-he had known him for more than twenty years as a man of sound and unerring judgment in the civil affairs of life; more than all, as firm, fixed, and undeviating in these principles which they call whig principles, and which tended to the great ness and prosperity of the country. General Scott's interest is not to imbue the nation in a foreign war. He whig principles, and which tended to the greatness and prosperity of the country. General Scott's interest is not to imbus the nation in a foreign war. He stands in the world side by side with one man, as the great captain of the age. He needs nothing now to add to his faurula. He would enter the Presidency with a ful knowledge of the administration; but among the first reasons neturaling to his support, were the which principles which impured General Scott. He was in favor of the river and barbes improvements, to which their opponents were opposed, and nominated a man as candidate wao, all his life, was opposed to them. The chairman spoke at length on this subject, and concluded by stating that General Scott was rafe on those questions. Another reason why he supported General Scott was, that he was in favor of American industry.

A large portion of his speech was directed to this rather dry subject, and served to disperse a fabr proportion of his ardience, who adjourned to listen to the orations from the neighboring stand. In conclusion he again thanked the meeting for the honor conferred on him.

A Voice is the Groups—You did not say a word about the English aristocracy. Who do they want us to cleet? Chairman—Oh. I d'd not think it necessary to allude to that. The British aristocracy are anxious for us to cleet General Pierce, but I know you will not be much influence by their whises.

The Rofinion Glee Clab gave another song, which brought hack part of the runnways.

The Chairman than introduced Gevernor Hust, of the State of New York, who spake as follows:—

My Fallow Citizens:—I offer you my sincere acknowledgments for the cerdial kindness of your reseption It was not without some hearisation that I made up my mind to resort hither to-day, to appear before my follow-citizen, assembled on this cension. As a general practice. I have shaws thought it more appropriate and more suitable to the official position to which I have been assigned by the condidenes of my fellow-citizens, to abstain from taking any per that I am a citizen, and claim to be a citizen, of the county of Nisgara, where I now stand, and I would allow no official consideration and no artificial restraint to prevent me from coming here to this county, to meet my old licheds and neighbors. I feel, while I am here, that I stand "on my native heath"—I feel that I have left all care behind me, and I now look forward to the glorious certainty and confidence on the trumphin future which awaits us. There is another thing which made it altegether proper that I should come here to day. This is not to be regarded in the light of an ordinary political meeting or partian demonstration. It is an occasion of national interect. It is an appeal to the particulum of the whole people of this country. You have assembled here to day, to emmenterate enced those great and friumphal events in our labory which will be intembered with gratique and pride to he intest peateity—which sysparated as it is from common meetings of partiena and factious politicians. It takes our political alcussions to a much higher standing, and counsets them with events which you have assembled to early up to your recelletion to day, I shall make no partiena appeal on such an occasion as this, as I should consider it unbecoming in mo to do so, But I am certain there are no democrate here, no honest particles of the labol, and make it may be in the glorical free location of the labol, and make it may be in the glorical free location appears and Pasgare. I covertain towards the candidate who has been presented to the people of this country by the representatives of the white privy, at the recent National Convenient. I shall not dwell on his military exploits. There is a record here which repeats louder than wants. If none of you know what he has done, you have to bravel but a few there steps from hence and you will find your silves standing on that soil where as will his obod in offence of the rights and honor of his country, and turned back the current of adversary, which her had well right dispelled the course of the nation, there is no minu whose parties a feating farry him to for as to call in question the devotion and loyalty to America of a min who has exposed his life for mire than try 1 (25) on occasion of most try and those as Win. I hope I that all our people will exercise this right understandin the rests in them as citizens of a common country; and chalever the result may be whether favorable to my personal views and inclinations or not I will submit to it as the expression of the popular will of the country, and whatever may be the political tortunes of the day—that we are American citizens and that we will may esteadily on with our stars and stripes as our flag and saalntain those principles of right and liberty and those free institutions which we inherit from our ancestry. In Conclusion, Gov Hunt extended a welcome, in the name of the State of New York to the numerous representatives from other States whom he saw around him.

Mingled calls of "song," "aong," and "Gov. Jones," lasted from adaresing them at present as in wait to be excused from adaresing them at present as in wait much fatigues with times.

Mr. Davis, of Md., next addressed the meeting and and the greech and gave assumence of the strong and abiding fauth of his State to whip principles.

Mr. Schouler, of the Easton Adas next took the stand, and at the conclusion of his speech, the meeting adjourned until SP. M.

While there proceedings were taking place at the principal stand a crewd of ome thousands

Your regular correspondent estimated the crowd around the principal platform at about $,900; but I don't think they reached that figure. The assemblage to day was greatly interspersed with gambiers, blackleys and pick pockets who pursued their respective assections with great industry. One eld gentleman lost $300. Some eight of the fraternity were arrested by a corps of special constables. Among them was one noted character from your city.
